The New Anchor Book of Blackwork Embroidery Stitches

David & Charles The Anchor Embroidery Series offers the perfect introduction to popular embroidery techniques. Blackwork is a counted thread embroidery technique in which repetitive patterns are used to fill outlined areas. This book covers the materials and equipment needed, the essential stitches, and outlines in step-by-step detail the working of 49 infill patterns. It is sure to become an indispensable reference for stitchers. Blackwork was originally so called because black thread was most often used on white fabrics, but many of the 16 original charted designs provided show how this technique can just as effectively be worked with colored threads on colored fabrics. The beautiful designs include ringing Christmas bells, a charming country cottage, delicate florals and an exotic oriental fan and kimono. There are also ideas for how the delightful designs can be used to create a selection of small projects.

The New Anchor Book of Crewelwork Embroidery Stitches

David & Charles Crewelwork is one of the oldest embroidery techniques; associated with the 17th century and often known as Jacobean embroidery, it is as popular today as it has ever been. Historically worked in soft wools on twilled linens, today's embroiderer is discovering just how successfully the techniques can be applied to stranded cotton threads and a wider variety of fabrics. Crewelwork embroidery is distinguished by its textured, almost three-dimensional stitches. This book outlines in step-by-step detail the working of 48 of the most versatile stitches, listed alphabetically for easy reference. Sixteen new embroidery designs show the stitches worked in context and trace-off patterns are included. The featured embroideries include traditional Jacobean motifs, contemporary flowers, and whimsical celebration designs. There are also ideas for using the embroidered designs on several small projects.

Cross Stitch

45 pages of charted designs from the mid-1900s will delight modern-day needlepointers and cross stitchers with dozens of floral designs, animals, alphabets and geometric patterns. Synthetic dyes developed in the 1830s led to brilliantly colored wool yarns, and their popularity influenced a style of needlepoint which became known as "Berlin Work" or "Berlin wool work." Wool yarns were most commonly used for canvas embroidery, but accents of silk or cotton thread, metallic thread and even beads were popular as well. Small booklets offered patterns catering to the Victorian love of nature-inspired motifs, repeating geometric patterns and monograms. Each pattern plate shown in this book measures about 3" by 4." Because the patterns were heavily used, very often only the individual pages survived but this booklet is still an intact large folded sheet, although the covers are missing. This collection was printed in Germany during the mid-19th century by H. K. Berlin S.W. Charted designs are a universal language with each square on the graph paper representing a single completed stitch, so these are easily adapted by modern needleworkers for both needlepoint and counted cross stitch. Antique "Berlin Work" was most often worked in Continental (Tent) or Half Cross stitches on evenweave canvas, although full Cross stitches were sometimes used both on canvas and linen fabric.
