facing. I need protection. Excerpt from Dragan, the King of Shadow: "If the angel has no wings, there's no amount of my shadow magic that could make them appear," I say. It takes the sprite a moment or two to understand what I'm getting at. Once he does, his eyes go wide and he begins shaking his head, holding up his hands in obvious supplication. "Look, Shadow Prince, I dunno why yer magic ain't workin' but I'm tellin' you what I saw. This angel got her wings," the sprite says, but he appears nervous. "You'll see. Besides, it ain't like yer jist gonna leave her here, are ya?" He glances around and seems to become frightened by his surroundings. The Shadow Realm is hardly safe, littered as it is by bloodthirsty creatures and the undead. Were I to leave the sprite and the girl here alone, they would undoubtedly be killed within a half hour, at most. And even I'm not that horrible...

He also insists that I'm not safe in Marshall Heights-something which becomes abundantly clear when Torsten's brother, Skarde, a full-blown Viking warrior come from another realm, suddenly shows up in my apartment and tries to murder me. Realizing I'm not the witch he thinks I am, Skarde releases me and then demands I join his cause-a cause I know and want nothing to do with. Even if Skarde is just as gorgeous as his brother, he's a loose cannon. Whereas Torsten is dark and brooding, Skarde is cocky and demanding. The two can't stand each other and, at this point, I'm starting to agree with them both. Regardless, now I'm not only involved in something I don't understand, I'm in over my head. In over my head = Viking wolf shifters, jealous and vengeful goddesses, and the start of the first of three winters which will doom mankind. Learning I possess the blood of the Valkyrie (from Odin) as well as the blood of the witches (from Freya), I'm straddling the line between both pantheons of gods. Stuck in the eye of the storm, I have no idea how to get out...
