Cover Story Teaching STEM subjects through karting

Motor sports and mechanics are a great way to revitalise interest in STEM subjects. David Glossop investigates. p32

REGULARS

Editorial 1

A new semi National Curriculum is dumped on the country

Points 4

New government scheme gives military personnel an easy route into teaching; schools are not challenging their brightest pupils; proposals to extend the school day to 6pm; and more.

Trends 8

We examine the broader social risks of religious admissions criteria. Plus, will the proposed GCSE reforms put girls at a disadvantage?

Report Update 15

Our regular digest of important new documents and studies for school teachers.

FEATURES

Our journey out of special measures 20

Linda Davis recounts the measures she put in place to pull her school out of special measures in an amazing 40 weeks.

What does it mean to be a good learner? 28

A culture of spoon-feeding and persistent examination has removed children's ability to identify good learning. Di Pardoe thinks she may have the solution.

Are your students protected online? 38

Keeping our students safe online is more important now than ever before. Tim Pinto offers some useful safeguarding strategies.

Fair funding – in sight at last? 46

Is a fairer funding formula on the horizon at last? Peter Downes isn't so sure.

The intensifying role of school leaders 52

What challenges do our school leaders face, and how will these develop over the next decade or so? Peter Earley discusses ways heads can offset such challenges and maintain their optimism in difficult times.

How much do you affect learner outcomes? 63

Viviane Robinson examines the types of practice that have a demonstrable, rather than assumed, impact on student outcomes.

Unleash your inner evaluator 70

Dave Walters illustrates why extensive evaluative research is vital for developing individual and whole-school practice.

The Children and Families Bill 2013 80

A significant document for schools and education practitioners, we summarise some of the key proposals from the Children and Families Bill 2013.

EHC plans – Are they enough? 84

Will the EHC plans be enough to improve provision for our most vulnerable youngsters? Bob Piggott is not convinced.

PRIMARY FILE

The new primary language proposals - Une fausse piste! 90

Peter Downes exposes the primary foreign language proposals as undesirable and impractical, and offers an interesting alternative.

A NEET solution for primary schools 94

By the time a young person is NEET, it may be too late to help them. Annette Gillian and Kay Shaw report on an exciting project to identify those at risk of becoming NEET in primary school.

Manager's briefcase 101

Guidance and resources to help you build your students' resilience to extremism.
